About

AI was not the first technology wave, and it will not be the last. This workshop looks at technology developments that will cause a wave of disruption across industries, and explores scenarios that may unfold depending on certain triggers. It then turns to the resilient enterprise, where organizational structures, processes and behavior are designed to keep the company agile, not only for the current wave of AI disruption but for many waves to come.

Contents

Our future with AI
Where AI is heading, beyond the current wave.

Three exponential technologies are converging
The developments that will drive the next wave of disruption.

Demography and health reshape work
